Complete In-Transit Visibility for Your Multimodal, Global Supply Chain

Leading visibility providers Tive® and FourKites® have partnered to provide mutual customers with a platform that combines all in-transit data — real-time shipment location and condition, market-leading estimated times of arrival (ETA) and more. By integrating insights that go beyond traditional shipment visibility, Tive and FourKites provide mutual customers with a better end-customer experience.

Increased shipment volumes combined with an already-strained global supply chain demand more meaningful insights to improve ETA, load integrity and mitigation of preventable delays and damage for big-box retailers, food shippers and logistics service providers. Tive's Solo 5G trackers stream real-time, hyper-accurate location and condition data - temperature, light, humidity, shock - to the Tive Data Cloud or directly to the FourKites platform. FourKites' connectivity to telematics and GPS providers, coupled with its market-leading machine learning-based ETA engine provides a true depiction of when freight will arrive.

In combination, mutual customers will have deep visibility into all loads and be able to improve their end-customer experience. The integrated partnership extends access to critical shipper data to ensure that more shipments arrive on time, in full, undamaged, and unspoiled.
